HISTORICAL ACCOUNT, &c.

THE FAMILY OF KENNEDY are paternally of very high antiquity in Scotland, and are maternally descended from the Royal House of Stuart by two intermarriages. They are understood to be descended from the first Earls of Carrick, although the connection has not been precisely ascertained. After the extinction of that title on the marriage of the only daughter of Neil, second Earl of Carrick, to Robert Bruce, father of Robert I., they obtained the grant of the Chieftainship and leading of the men of Carrick, which had been held previously by the Family of Carrick.

The surname of Kennedy is of great antiquity in Scotland, and those of this name were probably part of the original inhabitants of Carrick. Chalmers, in his Caledonia, says that they are of Irish origin, but that it is quite uncertain when they emigrated to this country. He says, the Kennedys and Mac-kennedy acted as judges of Carrick under the Earls thereof in the time of Alexander II., who reigned from 1214 to 1249.* Vol. iii., p. 392. Vol. iii., p. 459. 1214.

The earliest notice of the name that has been met with is in a charter by Duncan, who was created Earl of Carrick between 1225 and 1230, of an annual rent of three merks out of the lands of Barreboth, in Carrick, and which is printed among the charters of the nunnery of North Berwick. The witnesses to this

 In another charter, in the same collection, which is supposed to be dated in 1250, granted by Nicholaus, son of Duncan de Carrick, to the church of St Cuthbert of Maybole, one of the witnesses is Murthau macKenede.

In the Cumbernauld charter-chest there is an exemplification of a confirmation in favour of “Joannes Cumyn filius quondam Joannis Cumyn,” of a grant made by the deceased William Cumyn, Earl of Buchan, to Cambuskenneth, of a bovate of 1244. land in Kirkintulloch—two of the witnesses to which are “Fer- gusio de Kennydy senescallo nostro, Joanne fratre ejus,” &c.
 It is in a handwriting of the 16th century, and is stated to be taken “de libro registri de Cambuskynmeth.” The “curia de Lenzie” is also mentioned in it.* This Earl of Buchan died before 1244; and John Cumyn of Badenoch, the son of John Cumyn who grants this confirmation, was one of the competitors for the Crown of Scotland in 1292.

The Cumyns were of Royal descent, and of the highest nobility in the kingdom; and it was not unusual for barons and chieftains to discharge the duties of stewards or judges to such personages or public functionaries, and ultimately come to possess the estates which they originally only managed; and thus the Kennedys may have acquired the barony of Lenzie. Chali., p. 707. mers says in his Caledonia,—“the overpowering influence of the Cumyns during the factious reign of Alexander III., (from 1249 to 1285,) created the new office of Justiciary in Galloway for John Cumyn.” He may at this time have brought Fergus Kennedy and his brother to act judicially under him in his court at Lenzie.

The next of the name who appears in history, though the connection cannot be ascertained, is Sir Hugh Kennedy, whose name figures among the barons who swore fealty to Edward I. in 1296. His name occurs among the barons of Lanarkshire, in connection with Sir William le Fleming, who had an interest in Kirkintilloch, a part of the barony of Lenzie, which lies on the very confines of Lanarkshire. There also occurs in this list the name of Alexander de Kennedy, canon of Glasgow. In 1296 Edward I. directed a mandate to the Sheriff of Lanarkshire for restoring his lands to "Hugh Kennedy," in consequence of certain negotiations and conventions between him and James, High Steward of Scotland. And, at the same time, he issued another order to restore his land to "Alexander de Kyrkintulloch," who is expressly said to be "in comitiva Hugonis Kenedy," and which had also been negotiated by the High Steward. The expression "comitiva" seems to imply that he was a vassal or retainer of Kennedy. In 1338 a Hugh de Kenedi de Scotia is mentioned, who sided with Thomas Ughtred, an English leader, at Perth.

In the reign of David II., which was from 1329 to 1371, a charter‡ is granted to Malcolme Fleming of Biggar of the lands of Leigne, "whilk were John Kennedie's, whilk the said John Kennedy forisfecit." It was not unusual at that time for the leaders to change their sides, and it was natural that the Kennedys should have at first joined with the Cumyns and their kinsmen the Baliols.

Having traced these early notices of the name of Kennedy to the time of John Kennedy, who is the first who is known to have possessed the barony of Dunure, the intimate connection will now be shewn between him and the Family of Carrick or de Carrick.

Fergus, Lord of Galloway, died in 1161, leaving two sons, Uchtred and Gilbert. In 1174 Gilbert slew his brother Uchtred, who left a son, Roland. Gilbert died in 1185, and was succeeded by his son Duncan. In the next year William I. interfered between the two cousins, and arranged their feuds, by giving to Duncan that portion of Galloway now called Carrick, while Roland retained the lordship of Galloway. Roland left a son, Alan, who succeeded to the lordship of Galloway, and left three daughters, Elena, Devorgilla, and Christian, among whom his estates were divided.

Duncan, who was created Earl of Carrick by Alexander II. between 1225 and 1230, granted the church of Kirkbride, with its pertinents, to the Cistercian nunnery at North Berwick. The church of Kirkbride stood upon the sea-coast, on the lands of Dunduff, about half a mile north of the castle of Dunure. The parish of Kirkbride was annexed to that of Maybole before 1597, and now forms the northern part of the united parish of Maybole. It also appears that, in 1193, Earl Duncan granted the lands of Maybottle to the Monks of Melros. Soon after 1216 he granted the church of St Cuthbert at Maybole, with its lands and tithes, to the Cistercian nunnery of North Berwick, and died about 1240.

This grant was repeated and confirmed by Neil, the second Earl of Carrick. He also granted a charter to SIR ROLAND DE CARRICK, previous to 1256, the year of his death, constituting him and his heirs Head of the whole Clan, "as well in cal- umpniis as in other articles and things pertaining to the Kenky-nol,* with the office of bailiary of the said county, and the leading of the men thereof." This charter was confirmed by Alexander II., by a charter dated at Stirling, 20th January, in the 27th year of his reign, 1275-6.† It also appears that Earl Duncan had other sons besides Neil, his eldest son and heir. He had a son, John de Carrick, who had the lands of Straiton, and granted the patronage of the church of Straiton to the Monks of Paisley. This grant was confirmed by a charter of Alexander II. in 1244.‡ He is a witness to the charter by Earl Duncan of an annual rent out of the lands of Berbeth already quoted. And in other charters, printed in the same collection, granted by Earl Duncan, there are mentioned as witnesses, "Alano Alexandro et Alano filiis comitis." In 1266 there is an entry in the Chamberlain Rolls, in the compotum of Ayrshire, of so much owing "per relevium Rollandi de Carrick," shewing that he had succeeded to some property, and possibly as the heir of John de Carrick, son of Earl Duncan.

* In Gaelic, "Kean" denotes the head, and "Kancel," a tribe or family. It denoted, in Galloway, the right of exacting, under the name of "Caupes," a substantial contribution from the members of the Clan, such as a horse, cow, or heifer. In a note to the Sutherland Peerage case, Lord Hailes states, that the right of Chieftainship "was a valuable right, even independent of the power and influence which attended the Chief. The estates of the Family of Cassillis lay in Galloway and Carrick. Perhaps some modern lawyers may know little of the caupes of Galloway and Carrick. They are described by Skene de verborum significatione, in the following words:—"Caupes. 'Calpes in Galloway and Carrick sygnifies ane gift, sic as hors or uther thing quhilk ane man in his awin lifetime and liege poustie gives to his maister, or to onie uther man that is greatest in power and authoritie, and speciallie to the Head and Chief of the Clann, for his maintenance and protection.'" These caupes were not suppressed till the act of the 22d James VI., cap. 21, 1617.

† The year then commenced on 25th March, and so continued until 1600.

SIR GILBERT DE CARRICK, son of Sir Roland de Carrick, submitted, in 1285, a difference between him and the nuns of North Berwick to Robert Bruce, Earl of Carrick, (who married the daughter of Neil, second Earl, and was father of Robert I.,) and to Robert, Bishop of Galloway, to which Sir Gilbert de Carrick's seal is appended, having the same coat of arms which the Cassillis Family now carries.* If, as is generally supposed, this Sir Gilbert de Carrick is the ancestor of the Family of Kennedy of Dunure, and was possessed of that estate, which is situated in the parish of Maybole, and close to the church and lands of Kirkbride, it is very possible that he might have conflicting interests with the Cistercian nunnery at North Berwick, to whom the church of St Cuthbert at Maybole, with its lands and tithes, and the church of Kirkbride, had been granted by Earl Duncan. There is not, in the charter-chest of the Marquess of Ailsa, any original grant of the barony of Dunure,† whereby it might be seen how that estate came into the Family. But that this Sir Gilbert de Carrick was connected, through his father, Sir Roland de Carrick, with the old Earls of Carrick, farther appears from the circumstance, that when Robert Bruce, Earl of Carrick, who married Marjory, heiress of Neil, second Earl, appeared before King John Balliol in 1292, to resign the earldom to his son, afterwards Robert I., Sir Gilbert de Carrick is one of the sureties to the King for obtaining the resignation of the earldom.

Lochdoon to the English, and restoring him, in integrum, to all his lands, tenements, and possessions, and to the office of keeper of the castle of Lochdoon. These lands and castle still belong to the Family.

About the year 1290 a charter was granted by Malcolm, Earl of Lennox, in favour of Gilbert de Carrick, son and heir of the deceased Sir Gilbert de Carrick, of the lands of Buckmonyn-Kennedy, Cromicaine, and Blairfode, in the earldom of Lennox.* This Gilbert de Carrick was one of the prisoners taken at the battle of Durham in 1346.

The earliest charter in Lord Ailsa's charter-chest is dated 18th January 1357-8, by David II., confirming, in favour of John de Kennedy, all the lands, tenements, and possessions belonging to or acquired by him. This is the first time the name of Kennedy appears in the title-deeds. It has been supposed that this John de Kennedy, who, in another charter, about the same period, is called "of Dunure," changed the name from Carrick to Kennedy.† It appears by a letter of dotation, dated

* On 28th October 1393 Duncan, Earl of Lennox, confirms a grant by Sir Gilbert Kennedy of Dunure in favour of John Kennedy, son of Fergus Kennedy, of the lands of Buckmonyn, in the earldom of Lennox. The presumption here is undoubtedly that Sir Gilbert Kennedy of Dunure had succeeded Sir Gilbert de Carrick as heir in these lands when he granted them to John Kennedy, son of Fergus Kennedy.

† Archibald, second Marquess of Ailsa, is the sixteenth in direct lineal male descent from this John Kennedy. The connection of the Kennedys of Dunure with the Carrick and Galloway lords appears, 1st, from the early notices given of that connection, such as with the Cumyns, justiciaries of Galloway, in which district Carrick lay, and who first possessed the barony of Lenzie, afterwards held by the Kennedys,—as also from the similarity of their Christian names. 2. John Kennedy of Dunure is styled "consanguineus regis" when Earl of Carrick, which may have arisen through some intermarriage with the Family of the old Earls of Carrick. 3. The great privileges of the old Family of Carrick, of the keeping of the castle of Lochdoon, and the leading of the men of Carrick, are confirmed in 1372 to John Kennedy of Dunure, evidently as representing the line. 4. The lands of Buckmonyn, in the earldom of Lennox, belonged before 1300 to Sir Gilbert

29th November 1371, that he founded a chapel, near to the parish church of Maybole, for a priest and three chaplains to celebrate divine service at the said chapel, for the happy state of himself, Mary, his wife, and their children, and for his ancestors and successors, and mortifies thereto his eighteen merk land lying contiguous to the chapel, an annual rent of ten merks sterling, payable from the lands of Balmacluncan, an annual rent of five merks out of the lands of Barricloich, an annual rent of six merks out of the lands of Treuchane, and an annual rent of five merks out of the lands of Barriloch. This grant is confirmed by a charter of King Robert the Second,

de Carrick, and in 1393 Sir Gilbert Kennedy of Dunure granted them to his cousin, John Kennedy, son of Fergus Kennedy.* 5. The complete identity of the arms of Carrick and Kennedy. The arms of the old Earls of Carrick were argent a chevron gules simply. They are so represented in Sir David Lindsay, the Lord Lyon's matriculation of arms. The seal of Gilbertus de Carrick in 1285, appended to a deed in Lord Panmure's charter-chest, about the patronage of Maybole, exhibits a chevron between three cross crosslets fichè; and the Kennedy arms are described in an authentic copy of an original confirmation by Robert II. in 1371 to John Kennedy of Dunure, including a description in Latin of the seal of the latter, sent to the University of Glasgow by the Principal of the Scotch College at Paris. John Kennedy's seal is stated to exhibit "super cera viridi integram—super sento erecto cantherinum medianum inter 3 cruces duplices hujusmodi  Sento assident utrinque duo Leones, in crista stat leo erectus;" with the legend, "Sigillum Joannis Kennedy." That is, a shield erect exhibiting a chevron between three cross crosslets, with two lions sitting on each side as supporters, and a lion erect as the crest. Subsequently, the Kennedys added to their arms the royal double tressure, in consequence of the marriage of James Kennedy of Dunure with a daughter of Robert III. In the seal to the charter of foundation of St Salvador's College by Bishop Kennedy, his coat of arms is shewn on the one side with the double tressure, and on the other without it. The Family subsequently adopted two swans as supporters and a dolphin as crest, and the first time it has been observed is about 1516, soon after being created Earls of Cassillis. David, sixth son of Sir Gilbert Kennedy, was one of the retinue, along with John Maxwell of Calderwood, who attended the Princess Margaret of Scotland on her marriage to the Dauphin in 1436, in honour of which event the alteration may have been made on the supporters and crest.

dated 4th December 1371, in which John Kennedy is called "dilectus consanguineus noster Joannes Kennedy de Dunnoure," and was farther confirmed by Pope Clement the Seventh, by a letter addressed to Walter, Bishop of Glasgow, approving of the foundation, erection, and dotation of the chapel of St Mary of Maybole. Whereupon, by letter, dated 1st March 1383-4, the said John Kennedy appropriates the lands of Barlach, Barclay, and Upper Ballimacluchan to the senior priest, who shall be provost and govern the same,—to the second priest, the three merk land of Maybole, and mill thereof, the one merk land of Knockoneckie, and six merk land of Treuchan,—and to the third priest, the four merk land of Pennyglen, and an annual rent of twenty shillings, to be paid by the provost ; and farther, gives the one merk land of Kennachie as a provision for a clerk.

JOHN KENNEDY of Dunure obtained grants of many different estates, which are still in the Family. In particular, he got from Robert the Second two charters, dated at Ayr, 1st October 1372, the one confirming the original grant by Neil, Earl of Carrick, to Sir Roland de Carrick, of the Chieftainship of the Family and bailiary of Carrick, with the leading of the men thereof ; and the other again confirming the original grant, and also the charter of confirmation thereof, by Alexander II. He also obtained a charter from Robert II., of the same date, confirming the letter of remission by Robert I. to Sir Gilbert de Carrick, for delivering up Lochdoon Castle, and the regrant thereof.

About 1362 he acquired from Marjory de Montgomery, senior, in her pure widowity, and Marjory, daughter of John de Montgomery, her cousin, the lands of Castlys ; from John of Turnberry, the penny halfpenny land of Dalmorton ; and from Murdoch, son of Somerled, the penny land of Schauben. In 1370 he acquired from Malcolm, the son of Christynus, the son of Adam de Dalrymple, the half of the barony of Dalrymple ; and in 1376 he acquired the other half thereof from Hugh, the son of Roland de Dalrymple. In or soon after 1370 he acquired from Malcolm, son of Roland de Carrick, the two penny land called Treuchan and Kennochen, lying in the parish of Kirkmichael-Munterduffy. In 1374-5 he acquired, by wadset, the barony of Cumbernauld from Thomas Fleming, grandson and heir of Malcolm, Earl of Wigtown. He was one of the commissioners, mentioned in Rymer's Foedera, upon the Treaty of Newcastle in 1354 for the redemption of David II;* and in 1358 his son, Gilbert Kennedy, was one of the hostages for the King; and in 1363 John de Kennedy de Scotie had a safe conduct from Edward III., to make a pilgrimage to the shrine of St Thomas at Canterbury. He married Mary and left issue,—

SIR GILBERT, his eldest son and heir.†

John Kennedy died about 1385, and was succeeded by

SIR GILBERT KENNEDY of Dunure, his eldest son and heir. He was one of the hostages for David II. in 1358. In 1364-5 he acquired from his father the lands of Strogilton of Poulton and two Broughtons of Lethydale; and in 1370, during his

* There is extant, in the Errol charter-chest, a compact bond and obligation, dated at Edinburgh, the penult of November 136—, (the full date of the year is worn away,) by John Kennedy of Dunure to “my Most Excellent Lady, the Lady Margaret, by the grace of God, Queen of Scotland, (the second wife of David II.,) and to her son, a noble and potent person, John de Logy of Logy;” whereby, for onerous causes, he binds himself to labour with them, and to warn them of all snares, “with all the power of his followers, without any deceit whatever, within the kingdom of Scotland, and chiefly within the lordship of Annandale,” under the usual reservation of the King’s authority. The obligation concludes thus, in case he shall do in the contrary,—“obligo me ex tunc, et ipso facto, esse reprobatum, et defactum, necnon falsum, perjurum, fide mentitum, et omni honore armorum, carentem ab omnibus reputare.”

† He is called “filius primogenitus” in a charter, dated 27th January 1384-5, by Malcolm Fleming of Biggar, confirming a grant by John Kennedy to Sir Gilbert Kennedy of the barony of Kirkintilloch. It appears, however, from the letter of dotation above mentioned, that John Kennedy had several children.

father's life, he acquired from Thomas Fleming, grandson of Malcolm, Earl of Wigtown, the town of Kirkintilloch. In 1384 he got a charter from Malcolm Fleming of Biggar, confirming a charter by his father, John Kennedy, of the forty shilling land of Kirkintilloch in favour of Sir Gilbert Kennedy, his eldest son, and of Agnes Maxwell, wife of the said Sir Gilbert, and the longest liver of them, and the heirs-male of his (Sir Gilbert's) body to be lawfully procreated; whom failing, to Gilbert Kennedy, eldest son of the said Sir Gilbert Kennedy, and the heirs-male of his body to be lawfully procreated; whom failing, to John Kennedy, brother-german of the said Gilbert, and the heirs-male of his body to be lawfully procreated; whom failing, Roland Kennedy, brother-german of the said Gilbert and John, and the heirs-male of his body to be lawfully procreated; whom all failing, the heirs whomsoever of the said John Kennedy of Dunure. In 1386 Sir Gilbert Kennedy granted a bond or obligation to the nunnery of North Berwick as to the church of Maybole, and gave as his pledge James Douglas, lord of Dalkeith. It has the remains of his seal attached to it, displaying a chevron between three cross crosslets, with a label of three points on the shield, and a lion for supporter on the left—the rest away.* In 1392 Sir Gilbert Kennedy grants an obligation, dated 16th September 1392, to James Kennedy, his son, by which he obliges himself not to revoke the grant made by him to the said James Kennedy, and the heirs-male of his body; whom failing, the heirs whatsoever procreate between the said Sir Gilbert Kennedy and Agnes Maxwell, his wife, (mother of the said James Kennedy,) of the Dominical lands of Kirkintilloch, and lands of Sherreve, Bar, Gartchewar, and Badcoll, lying in the barony of Lenzie and county of Dumbarton. On 2d November 1400 he got a charter from David, Earl of Carrick, eldest son of Robert III., of the lands of Dunure, Girvan, and Glenap, in

He took a charter, in the same terms, in 1404, of the lands of Cassillis and Guiletry and two Kilmores, but in this charter each of the younger sons are called brothers of James. In 1405 his son James married the Princess Mary, daughter of Robert III., and relict of George, first Earl of Angus,* and by her left issue,—

Among the hostages for the redemption of James I. was “Joannes Kennedy de Carryk,” who is said to be possessed of land to the amount of v^c marcas—a large sum at that time; and he had a safe conduct to meet the King at Durham with horses and retainers. In 1431 the following notice of him occurs in Fordun:—“For certain causes the King caused Archibald, third of that name, Earl of Douglas, and Sir John Kennedy, his nephews,† to be arrested,—the Earl he sent in custody to the castle of Lochleven, and his nephew he kept in the castle of Stirling, where he was kept

Nothing more transpires in history. But there appears, from the Chamberlain Rolls, under the "Expense" for the year 1434, a ^{Vol. iii.,} _{p 288.} payment for the expenses of Sir John Kennedy in the castle of Stirling under the King's Privy Seal, of £14, 13s. 4d., which is the last notice that has been found of him.

* It was this bishop who founded the college of St Salvator, or the "Auld College" of St Andrews, in the year 1450. He reserved to the House of Cassillis the right of presentation to ten prebendaries, or bursaries, provided for students in that college. One of the Earls of Cassillis subsequently acquired other four prebendaries from the college. By an act of the Parliament of Scotland, dated 22d July 1644, it was enacted, that a professorship of Humanity should be instituted in St Salvator's College, and that these fourteen prebendaries should be assigned as part of his maintenance. It was also thereby declared that the Earl of Cassillis, his heirs and successors, of the name and arms of Kennedy, should, in all time thereafter, have the right of presentation of the said professor, and of his successors in the said profession, together with the haill rents, profits, and duties of the said fourteen prebendaries. On the 14th and 18th February 1645, a contract was entered into between the Earl and the provost, professors, regents, and remanent members of the college, by which it is provided that the college shall be bound to receive and admit any party presented by the Earl, such party being first tried and found qualified, according to the order of the visitation of the said college. The Earl is bound to present within six months after intimation of a vacancy is made to him by the said college; and failing his doing so, the right may be exercised pro ista vice by the college jure devoluto. By an act passed in the year 1747 the two colleges of St Salvator and St Leonard were

Sir Gilbert Kennedy, on his son James' marriage, resigned in favour of him, and the heirs-male of his body ; whom failing, his other younger children, in the order above mentioned, the barony of Dalrymple,* and at the same time he resigned, in favour of his son James, under the reservation of his own life-rent, the Chieftainship and office of bailie of Carrick.† James was killed in a quarrel with his brother Gilbert. After the death of James, Sir Gilbert entered into an indenture with the Duke of Albany, governor of the kingdom, dated 8th November 1408, by which he obliged himself to make a taille of his estates in favour of himself and Agnes Maxwell, his wife, in liferent, and the heirs-male of his son James nominatim ; whom failing, to his other sons nominatim, and their heirs-male, in the order above mentioned. These sons are in this deed all called brothers of Alexander, who is called son of Agnes Maxwell. Sir Gilbert was married‡ to Agnes, daughter of Sir John Maxwell of Pol-united. There being a professorship of Humanity in each college, it was resolved to suppress the one of which the Family of Cassillis had the right of presentation, and in its place the patronage of the chair of Civil History was given to the Earl of Cassillis. This right of patronage is still held by the Family.

* In the charter of Dalrymple by the King, which is dated 22d January 1405-6, all the sons, except John, are called brothers of James. Having two sons, each named John, the younger one is always distinguished as "son of the said Gilbert and Agnes Maxwell." John Kennedy de Lenzie, and Fergus Kennedy, his son, are witnesses to this charter. Other Kennedys are found witnesses to deeds about this time,—such as Fergus Kennedy of Bomonym vel Bonynine, John Kennedy of Dalfash, and, a little later, John Kennedy of Balmaclanachan.

† The charter of the Chieftainship and office of bailiary is granted by the King as tutor of his son, the Earl of Carrick.

‡ It is stated in Nisbet's Heraldry and in the Peerages, that Sir Gilbert Kennedy was first married to Marion, daughter of Sir James Sandilands of Calder, by whom he is said, in Nisbet, to have had two sons, Gilbert and Thomas, and second, to Agnes Maxwell ; and it is added, that James, who carried on the line of the Family, was the eldest son of the second marriage. Thomas is also said to have been the ancestor of the Bargany Family. In Wood's Peerage, again, both marriages are stated, but the children, all of whom are mentioned, are arranged in a different order. There is, however, no evidence in Lord Ailsa's charter-chest of the first marriage ; the only wife of Sir Gilbert Kennedy who is

mentioned in any of the titles, is Agnes Maxwell, and she is called in various charters, particularly those in 1400 and 1404, the mother of all his children, except Gilbert, John, and Roland; and in the charter of 1384 of Kirkintilloch, in which Gilbert is called the eldest son, (primogenitus), and John and Roland, brothers-german of Gilbert, they are only called failing heirs-male of Sir Gilbert's body to be lawfully procreated. It would, therefore, appear that they were not legitimate. By our old practice, the word "german" does not necessarily infer legitimacy, but only that the children were born of the same mother. This charter was granted long before James' marriage to the Princess, which is assigned in the Peerage as the reason for passing over the eldest son.

It has been hitherto thought that Agnes Maxwell was a daughter of Sir Robert Maxwell of Calderwood, who was second son of Sir John Maxwell of Pollock, who was alive in 1401. But, 1st, Agnes Maxwell was married to Sir Gilbert Kennedy before 1384, (see charter of Kirkintilloch,) and in 1392 her eldest son, James Kennedy, had got a grant from his father of part of these lands. 2d, Sir Robert Maxwell only got Calderwood from his father in 1401, so he is not likely to have had a daughter married twenty years before. The first time his name is mentioned in the titles in the Pollock charter-chest is in 1390. 3d, By the confirmed testament of Sir Robert Maxwell of Calderwood in 1421 in that charter-chest, which is marked on the back, "Syr Robert Maxwell testament yat deid yn France at battall off Vernell, ye first lord of Calderwold," Sir Robert orders his body to be buried in the church of the Minor Friars in the county of Anjou, and mentions his wife, his eldest son, "sorori mee d~ne de d~ur Alano de Hamilton," with a bequest of Carlein, his page, to his eldest son. The deed is very much contracted, but the words "sorori mee d~ne de d~ur" may be interpreted domine de dunur or dunure,—the dashes clearly shewing the omission of some letters. 4th, To the grant by Sir John Maxwell to his son, Robert Maxwell, in 1401, of the lands of Calderwood, the witnesses are, "Dominis Gilberto Kenydi, Alano de Kethkert militibus, Humphredo de Culquhon, et Alano de Hamilton;" and to the grant in 1393 by Sir Gilbert Kennedy, the husband of Agnes Maxwell, to John Kennedy, son of Fergus Kennedy, of the lands of Buckmonyn, in the earldom of Lennox, Sir John Maxwell of Pollok is a witness. In like manner, Sir Hugh Eglinton, another connection, is a witness to a grant by Robert II. to Sir John Maxwell of Pollok of the lands of Badnolle.

He had a son, Gilbert Kennedy, who obtained a charter, dated 31st December 1456, from John M'Dowall of Quarterland, of the twenty-five shilling land of Beoch. In the History of the Kennedys he is said to have been a natural son; and none of his family are called in any of the future entails, although they are frequent witnesses to deeds. In 1464 Gilbert Kennedy acquired the barony of Craigneil, which estate remained with his descendants till the middle of the sixteenth century, when it was sold to Kennedy of Knockdolian, and by him to Kennedy of Carslo, from whom it was acquired by the Earl of Cassillis.

† The lands of Kirkoswald were for a long time part of the Bargany estate. In 1597 they were the jointure lands of Lady Agnes Kennedy, widow of Sir Thomas Kennedy of Bargany.

‡ The Bargany Family quartered the three fleur de lis, or arms of France, with their paternal coat, seemingly on account of feats of arms performed there, in like manner as the Stuarts of Darnley. The Montgomeries of Eagleshame, afterwards of Eglinton, bore the three fleur de lis as their arms; and as the Bargany Family frequently intermarried with the Montgomeries, their quartering these arms may have arisen from that connection.

Thomas Kennedy of Bargany is mentioned. He married Agnes, daughter of Hugh, second Earl of Eglinton, and had issue two sons; Gilbert, his eldest son, who married Janet, daughter of Andrew, Lord Ochiltree. He was killed at the skirmish of Brockloch, near Lady Corse, at Maybole, by Lord Cassillis' friends, on 11th December 1601.* He was succeeded by his son Thomas. Sir Thomas Kennedy's second son was Thomas Kennedy of Drummurchie, who slew Sir Thomas Kennedy of Culzean near Ayr on the 12th May 1602, in revenge for the death of his brother Gilbert. He fled to Ireland, where he lived with the Viscount of Ardes. In 1620 the estate of Bargany was sold by Thomas Kennedy, son of Gilbert Kennedy of Bargany, to Sir Thomas Hamilton of Lesterwick, with whose descendants in the female line it still remains.

GILBERT, FIRST LORD KENNEDY, eldest surviving son of James Kennedy and the Princess Mary, and grandson of Sir Gilbert Kennedy. He was created Lord Kennedy between 3d August 1456 and 20th March 1457, as he is styled Lord Kennedy, for the first time, in an instrument of resignation of the lands of Glenginnet of the latter date.* In 1466 he was appointed one of the six regents of the kingdom on the death of James II. He married Katherine, daughter of Herbert, first Lord Maxwell, of Caerlaverock, by whom he had several children. In the year 1450 he got several charters from the Crown of the Family estates and Chieftainship, in which his wife's name is mentioned. He seems to have had the following family:—

1. John, afterwards second Lord Kennedy.
2. James Kennedy, afterwards designed of Row.†

above arrangement is taken from the charters of 1384, 1400, and 1404. Nisbet is clearly erroneous in the order of birth, and his statement, in other respects, of the Blairquhan branch, is quite incorrect. It is clear, from Lord Ailsa's titles, that Thomas was the ancestor of the Bargany branch; and that he was a younger son than James who carried on the main line of the Family, is evident from the charter of 1405, in which the sons are all called brothers of James, and from the indenture with the Duke of Albany, dated 8th November 1408, in which, failing James' children, the other sons are all called, in the same order, as brothers of Alexander, the then eldest surviving son.

* There is among the titles a curious obligation, dated 28th October 1454, by Gilbert Kennedy, son and heir of Roland Kennedy of Leffnol, not to disturb Gilbert Kennedy of Dunure, his master, in his lands and offices specified, under the penalty of £6000 Scots. Was this Roland Kennedy the younger brother of Gilbert and John before mentioned? Gilbert, the eldest brother, died without issue, as is proved by an infettment, dated 17th April 1466, in favour of Gilbert, Lord Kennedy, in the forty merk land of Kirkintilloch, on a decree and brieve of recognition, 15th April 1466, against Robert, Lord Fleming. John, the second son, is supposed to be the ancestor of the first Family of Kennedy of Coif, who soon became extinct.

Of this nation I knew also anone,

And Quintine with anc huttok on his heid.

And Lyndsay, in a poem written in 1530, exclaims,—

Or quha can now the warkis countrefait, Off Kennedie with termes aureait ?
Or of Dunbar quha language had at large,
As may be seen intill his Goldin Targe.

He was educated at the college of Glasgow, and appears to have been originally intended for the Church. In the poem called the "Flyting of Dunbar and Kennedy," he says,—

I am the kingis blude, his treu speciall clerk,
That never yit imaginait his offence ;

Only dependand upoun his excellence,
Trestand to haif of his magnificence,

Quhen that the revynnis sal syfe out baith thy ene,
And on the rattis salbe thy residence.

He was incorporated with the college in 1475, took his degree as Bachelor of Arts in 1476, and as a licentiate and Master of Arts in 1478. In November 1481 he was elected one of the four masters to act as examiner. Of his subsequent history, little is known. From the "Flyting," it appears that he resided for some time on the Continent, but at that time was living in Ayrshire. He acted for some time as bailie-depute of Carrick. Dunbar, in his Lament for the Makars, written between 1505 and 1508, speaks of him as lying at the point of death. He says,—

1. Walter Kennedy, rector of Douglas. He was incorporated as a member of the college of Glasgow in October 1511. He was chosen rector of the university in 1525, at which time he was provost of the collegiate church of Maybole and canon of Glasgow.
2. Alexander Kennedy of Glentig, married Janet Wallace, and had issue,—

William Kennedy of Glentig, called in the entail of 1540. He had a daughter, Janet Kennedy, who is stated in a contract, dated 3d April 1562, between Gilbert, fourth Earl of Cassilis, and her, to be the heir of Alexander Kennedy of Glentig, Walter Kennedy, parson of Douglas, her granduncle, and James Kennedy in Kirkdomini. She married William Kennedy of Gilespie.

7. Marion,* who was contracted to marry John, son and heir of William Wallace of Craigie, by indenture dated 12th April 1459; and was also contracted to marry James, eldest son of Robert, Lord Boyd, in 1465.

In 1510 he is mentioned in a deed as parson of Douglas ; and in 1517 his son, Walter Kennedy, rector of Douglas, is infeft, as heir of his father, in the lands of Glentig. His poems, which are now scarce, were reprinted, along with those of Dunbar, by David Laing, in 1834.

† Amongst the titles at this date there is a very curious notarial instrument, shewing the character of the times. The barony of Greenan was feued by John, Earl of Ross, and Lord of the Isles, to John Davidson, his native esquire, in 1475. Thomas Davidson had succeeded to these lands, and been infeft in them as heir to John, under a precept from the Crown, in consequence of the forfeiture of the Earl of Ross. The Earl of Douglas had got a gift of the escheat of the Earl of Ross, and he had infeft his son, William Douglas, in Greenan; whereupon Thomas Davidson took this instrument, dated 1st July 1510, which states that he compeared at his own mansion-house, and in presence of William Douglas, then taking infeftment of the lands of Greenan, after casting down upon the ground a certain vessel and breaking it, he asserted that such infeftment was broken and dissolved by the breaking in pieces of the said vessel, and protested that such infeftment taken by the said William Douglas should not hurt or prejudice that of the said William Davidson, or his heritage.

The original charter of these lands in 1475, by John, Lord of the Isles, to his native esquire, John Davidson, is in the charter-chest.

‡ This is proved by a precept, dated 21st May 1534, for infefting Gilbert, third Earl of Cassillis, as heir of his grandfather, Earl David, in the lands of Ballgray and others, in which the Earl, though a minor, is declared of lawful age, in virtue of the act of dispensation made by James IV. at Twizelhaugh, dated 24th August 1513, in favour of those who accompanied him to the battle.

4. Thomas Kennedy of Coiff, married Katherine, daughter of Thomas Corry of Kelwood,† and had issue,—

1. Thomas, who was infeft in the lands of Coiff and Mackilvairdstain as heir to his father, 1st April 1555.

2. David, who was infeft in Coiff as heir to his brother Thomas, 7th April 1567. He had issue,—

Alexander of Balvaird, who was infeft in the lands of Coiff and Mackilvairdstain as heir to his father David, 24th August 1586. He married Isobel, daughter to David Kennedy in Maxwellton.‡ He had a grandson, David, who was infeft in Mackilvairdstain or Balvaird as heir of his grandfather, 8th September 1675. He had previously sold these lands to the Earl of Cassillis, by disposition dated 18th January 1672.

5. Katherine, married Quintin Mure of Aird, and had issue.§

* He is witness to a contract, dated 29th January 1528, between Gilbert, third Earl, and William, the abbot. In 1569 there is a William Kennedy of Brunston witness to a letter of reversion by David Kennedy of Coiff to Earl Gilbert; but in a charter by the Abbot of Crossraguel to David Kennedy in Balsarroch, William Kennedy of Brunston is called brother-natural of David.

† This is the Thomas Kennedy called in the entail of 1540.

‡ Mentioned in a charter in her favour by her husband, dated 24th August 1586.

§ In the History of the Kennedys she is called Lady Skeldon, and afterwards Lady Sorn. Her first husband's name is mentioned in a precept, dated 7th January 1510, by Lord Cassillis, for infefting him and Katherine Kennedy, his wife, daughter of the Earl, in the lands of Kilmore. She appears also to have married, before 1533, William Hamilton of Sorn and Sanquhar. She had one

Lord Cassillis married, secondly, Margaret, daughter of Thomas, Earl of Arran, and niece of James III., and widow of Alexander, fourth Lord Forbes, but by her had no issue.† He died 9th September 1513, and was succeeded by

GILBERT, SECOND EARL OF CASSILLIS, eldest son and heir. In 1516 he was appointed, by the Bishop of Galloway, bailie of all the lands belonging to the bishopric in Galloway, and captain and keeper of the manor-place and loch of Inch. He was ambassador to England, 1515–16. He married Isabella, second daughter of Archibald, second Earl of Argyll, and had issue,— daughter by Quintin Mure, called Margaret, who was married to John Kennedy of Skeldon, and is mentioned in a precept of clare as heir to her father in these lands.

2. Thomas, died before 2d November 1560.

* In the History of the Kennedys another daughter is mentioned,—Helen, said to have been, first, married to Lord Eglinton, and afterwards, to Graham of Knockdolian. Christian is called Lady Altyre, which seems to be a mistake for Guiltree. She and her husband are mentioned in a discharge, dated 28th May 1526, in favour of the Earl of 200 merks, being her portion.

† In the above History and in Wood's Peerage, this lady is called Grizel Boyd. But she is called Margaret in a charter by James IV., dated 5th February 1511–12, in favour of the Earl and her, in conjunct fee and liferent, of the lands of Cassillis and others. She subsequently married William Wallace of Craigie.—Acts and Decrees of Supreme Civil Court, 1561.

‡ He got a charter of the lands of Culzean from his brother, Earl Gilbert, dated 30th September 1542. The daughters' names and their husbands are mentioned as heirs-portioners of their father in the summons of declarator, dated 2d February 1590, at the instance of David M'Gill against the Earl of Cassillis and others.

In the History of the Kennedys, Lord Cassillis is said to have had two daughters,—Janet, Lady Freugh, and Helen, Lady Kenhilt. On 24th November 1571 William Adair of Kenhilt, and Helen Kennedy, his wife, are infeft by Lord Cassillis in the lands of Larg, Steuart, and others, in Wigtownshire; and on the 14th of May 1562 there is an instrument of requisition by Alexander Vans of Barn-

GILBERT, THIRD EARL OF CASSILLIS, his eldest son and heir, born 1515, was served heir to his father 14th October 1538. He was educated at St Andrews. He was compelled to sign the sentence of death of Patrick Hamilton, abbot of Ferne, who was burned there for heresy.* On 30th October 1529 he was discharged of all points of treason from being at the battle beside Linlithgow.† He was a pupil of the celebrated George Buchanan, who had a high esteem for him, and with whom he travelled abroad for some years, and returned to Scotland in May 1537. On his return he was made one of the Lords of the Secret Council to James V., who admitted him to a very great degree of confidence and favour. He was at the rout of Solway, where he was taken prisoner in November 1542, and was placed under the charge of Archbishop Cranmer, by whom he was converted to the Protestant faith. Having procured hostages, he returned home next year, and was engaged in the English interest to promote the marriage of Queen Mary with Prince Edward, for which he got a pension of 300 merks.‡ His hostages were, his uncle, Thomas Kennedy of barroch, and Janet Kennedy, Lady Freugh, his wife, to the tenants of certain lands in Galloway to pay their rents.

These ladies may have been previously married to Thomas McClelland and Thomas Kennedy.

† Act Par., James V.

‡ On the 30th August 1543 a bond of manrent was granted by Hugh Campbell of Loudoun to Gilbert, Earl of Cassillis, bearing that the Earl having, at the special request of the Lord Governor and other earls, lords, and barons of the realm, remitted all rancour against the said Hugh Campbell, his servants and dependents, anent the slaughter of his Lordship's father, and had taken him into his favour and kindness, and granted to him, and the heir immediately succeeding him, his letter of maintenance; therefore, the said Hugh Campbell obliges him, and the heirs succeeding him in his lands and offices, in manrent and service to his Lordship during their respective lifetimes, &c. This bond proceeds upon offers by Hugh Campbell to the Earl for the injuries he had done, and which

Coiff, and his brothers Thomas and David. His ransom was fixed at £1000. His hostages were placed under the care of the Archbishop of York, but were shamefully neglected by the Earl.* It was not till they were threatened with immediate execution that the Earl went to London early in 1545, and delivered himself up to King Henry. His hostages were immediately released, and he himself was discharged of his ransom, and permitted to return home loaded with presents. He afterwards deserted the English party, became a lieutenant-general of horse to Queen Mary, and justiciary of Carrick. He was named an extraordinary Lord of Session 31st July 1546. He was appointed lord high treasurer in 1554, and was one of the eight members elected by Parliament to attend Queen Mary's marriage with Francis, the Dauphin of France.† The opposition of the Scottish deputies to give the crown-matrimonial to the Dauphin gave great offence, and three of them died at Dieppe in one night, 18th November 1558, among whom was the Earl of Cassillis, and not without suspicion of poison.‡ His body having been brought he humbly beseeches the Earl to accept, in compliance with the request of the King of England and the governor and lords of Scotland, mediators between them; by which he is to give, first, his and his son's bond of manrent to the Earl during all the days of their respective lives; secondly, his son's marriage to be at the Earl's disposal; thirdly, all those engaged on the side of the said Hugh Campbell, who will not abide an assize, to be in the Earl's will; fourth, all suffrages, either public or private, to be referred to the Lords, as the Earl shall think expedient, &c.

John Kennedy of Craigneil gave a bond of manrent to the Earl on 5th March 1545.

† He was appointed a gentleman of the Bedchamber to Henry II., King of France, on 28th April 1558.

‡ In an action before the Court of Session 5th May 1565, Gilbert, fourth Earl of Cassillis, produced his father's testaments, to be considered so far as regards his sister Jane, Countess of Orkney. He "producit ye saidis tua testaments, ye ane dated Edinburgh, 1557," by which he made his wife and Gilbert, his eldest son, his executors, and his brother "ye abbot." Then is this clause:—"Item, I leif to Jane, my eldast dochter, to hir merriage scho usand hir honestlie, by ye advise of my wife and my eldest sone, ane thousand pundis." The uyer teshome, was buried in the collegiate church of Maybole. On the 6th of February 1540 he took a charter of his estates in favour of himself, and the heirs-male of his body; whom failing, to Thomas Kennedy, his brother-german, and the heirs-male of his body; whom failing, to David Kennedy, his brother-german, and the heirs-male of his body; whom failing, to Quintin Kennedy, his brother-german, and the heirs-male of his body; whom failing, to Archibald Kennedy, also his brother-german, and the heirs-male of his body; whom failing, to Hugh Kennedy, also his brother-german, and the heirs-male of his body; whom failing, to James Kennedy, also his brother-german, and the heirs-male of his body; whom failing, to James Kennedy, uncle of the Earl, and the heirs-male of his body; whom failing, to Thomas Kennedy of Coiff, also uncle of the Earl, and the heirs-male of his body; whom failing, to Hugh Kennedy of Girvan Mains, and the heirs-male of his body; whom failing, to William Kennedy of Glentig, and the heirs-male of his body; whom failing, to Alexander Kennedy of Bargany, and the heirs-male of his body; whom failing, to James Kennedy of Blairquhan, and the heirs-male of his body; whom failing, the nearest heirs-male whatsoever of the Earl, bearing the name and arms of Kennedy; whom all failing, his nearest heirs-female. This charter includes the office of bailiary of Carrick, and all fees pertaining thereto.* On 10th July 1546 the Earl, for himself, and as taking burden on him for Gilbert, Master of Cassillis, his eldest son and heir, enters into a contract with James, Earl of Arran, governor of Scotland, that the Master of Cassillis, and Dame Jean Hamilton, daughter of the Earl of Arran, shall solemnize marriage so soon as they are of lawful age. The Earl of Arran promised to give £2333, 6s. 8d. of tocher with his daughter.* Lord Cassillis acquired the barony of Craigneil in 1557. He married Margaret, daughter of Alexander Kennedy of Bargany, by whom he had issue,—

1. Gilbert, fourth Earl of Cassillis.
2. David, died an infant.†
3. Sir Thomas Kennedy of Culzean, afterwards tutor of Cassillis, from whom descended Thomas, ninth Earl.

§ On the 28th and 29th August 1559 the Earl entered into two contracts with his mother, the Countess of Cassillis, regarding her provisions. By the first contract he provided to her the place of Cassillis, with the garden and orchard, for her residence, and assigned to her, yearly, during her life, 110 bolls of meal, 52 bolls bear, 115 merks money, 89 capons, 36 salmon, and the third part of the meadow of Blairbowie, in full of her terce, to be uplifted and taken out of certain lands. She has also permission to take wood to the place of Cassillis, from the woods of Cassillis and Dalrymple. By the second contract the Earl, for the love and favour he bears to his mother, and for decorating her house, gives her, during cillor to Queen Mary ; a gentleman of the Bedchamber to Henry II., King of France, 10th February 1558-9 ; appointed justiciary of Carrick in 1565 ; was at the battle of Langsyde with Queen Mary, for which he was forfeited in Parliament, but from which he was subsequently reponed. He was afterwards appointed one of the Privy Council to the King. On the 1st and 7th of September 1570 he carried Allan Steuart, commendator of Crossraguel, to the castle of Dunure, where he presented to him for signature various deeds, conveying to the Earl the lands belonging to the abbacy, which, when he refused to sign, the Earl placed him over a large fire in the vault of Dunure, to compel him to do so. Kennedy of Bargany came to the Commendator's assistance, and took the castle of Dunure.* The her life, the yearly rent of the two and one-half merk land of Craigmulloch, along with 111 milk ewes, 77 yeild ewes, 108 wedders, 40 gimmers, and 40 dinmonts ; as also, other 80 gimmers and dinmonts, to be received by her at the feast of Belton then next, 1560, together with 11 old goats and 2 kids ; as also, 114 head of nolt, pasturing upon the lands of Kerry Castle, in the forest of Buchan, viz. 16 Nicol cows, and as many calves, 17 farow and 9 yeild cows, 5 three-year-old cows, 22 old oxen, 2 bulls, 6 three-year-old oxen, and 2 bulls, 5 two-year-old oxen, 3 two-year-old queys, 8 quey stirks, and 9 oxen stirks ; which sheep, goats, and cattle, the Countess obliges herself, her heirs and executors, to leave on the ground of the lands respectively above mentioned at her decease, or the like number, and of as great avail, for the use of the Earl and his successors ; as also, he gives to the Countess, during her life, a silver bason and a laver, a double gilt cup of silver raised work with a cover, two cases of silver, the one gilt and the other ungilt, a gilt macer, two silver trenchers with two little salt-fatts in their nooks, twelve silver spoons, a silver salt-fatt and cover thereof ungilt, a black velvet bed with the curtains of black damask, and four pieces of tapestry in Edinburgh, and four feather beds and their bolsters ; all which silver work, tapestry, and bedding, the Countess obliges her and hers aforesaid to leave to the Earl and his successors within the place of Cassillis at her decease, or as much, and of the same avail. The Earl, being under age, obliges himself to choose curators between and Martinmas then next to ratify the contract. It is accordingly ratified on 5th November 1559 by Quintin, Abbot of Crossraguel, Sir Hugh Kennedy of Girvan Mains, David Kennedy of Culzean, and Mr Thomas Hay, parson of Spynie, the Earl's curators.

* Bargany seems to have had a personal interest to prevent the Abbot falling into the hands of the Earl. On the 28th January 1569 the Abbot obtained letters

Commendator lodged a complaint with the Privy Council against the Earl, who alleged in defence, that the complaint was either civil or criminal, and that he ought not to answer thereto to the Privy Council.* The Privy Council, however, sent him to Dumof relaxation against Bargany from letters of caption which Bargany had taken out against the Abbot, "whom he held in captivity, and would in nowise liberate," although he had found surety to underlie the law for being art and part guilty of the slaughter of umquhill James Ballany and two others, at Langside, in May 1568; and therefore charging Bargany to set the Abbot at liberty within three days. And, again, on 13th November 1573, Bargany grants a renunciation to the Earl of Cassillis, in implement of a contract between the Abbot on the one part, the Earl on the second part, and Bargany on the third part, whereby he renounces, in favour of the Earl, a great variety of lands, part of the Abbacy of Crossraguel, and renounces and overgives the whole letters of assedation of the said lauds and teinds granted to him by the said Abbot, so that the Earl may possess the same, conform to the disposition granted to him by James Steuart of Cardonald, except the proper lands held by Bargany immediately of the King and Laird of Barneil.

* With reference to the roasting of the Commendator on the 1st and 7th of September 1570, as to which fact there can be no doubt from the record remaining in the Privy Council books, there is a curious instrument in Lord Ailsa's charter-chest, dated 9th September 1570, two days after the roasting at Dumure, bearing that the Earl gave possession to Alan, Abbot of Crossraguel, personally present, of the place, orchard, wood, and four merk land of Crossraguel, to be enjoyed and possessed by him during the Earl's pleasure, and in token thereof the Earl presented to the said Abbot John Davidson and Patrick M'Cawell, occupiers of the said four merk land, together with the key of the principal tower of the place of Crossraguel; and the Abbot received the said John Davidson and Patrick M'Cawell for his tenants, and that conform to agreement formerly entered into between the Earl and him. Moreover, the Earl obliges himself to pay yearly to the Abbot the sum of £100 money of Scotland; and for the more sure payment of the said sum, the Earl is to find two landed gentlemen as cautioners therefor at the Abbot's pleasure—he being always obliged to give his counsel and service to the Earl. The deed is dated at the Abbacy of Crossraguel, and the witnesses are, David Campbell, son of Charles Campbell of Skeldon, Quintin Mure in Kileckie, Hector Fergusson in Crossraguel, and Mathew Hamilton in Dalrymple.

The conclusion of this affair was as follows:—On the 5th of April 1571 there is a memorandum of an arrangement, wherehy Lord Cassillis paid 500 merks to Robert, Lord Boyd, to be paid to James Steuart of Cardonald, for which, barton Castle until he found security not to molest the Com-mendator, in £2000, and also in the like sum to Mr George Buchanan, pensioner of Crossraguel, his father's old preceptor. He married Margaret,* only daughter of John, ^{seventh} ninth Lord Glamis, and by her, who afterwards married John, first Mar- quess of Hamilton, had issue—

1. John, fifth Earl of Cassillis.
2. Hugh of Brunston, Master of Cassillis, died unmar-ried.
3. Gilbert, Master of Cassillis, from whom descended John, sixth Earl.

This Earl went by the name of the King of Carrick, and died in December 1576.† He was succeeded by and the sum of 3000 merks farther, and the discharge of a bond for 300 merks, formerly borrowed by Lord Boyd from Hugh Kennedy, on the one hand, Lord Boyd undertook, on the other hand, to procure from James Steuart all the deeds granted in his favour of the Abbacy of Crossraguel by Alan, Abbot thereof, as also the Abbot's provision to the Abbacy from the Queen, and the iustrument of institution by the Pope, and all other deeds relating to the Abbacy upon his conscience; as also, to deliver to the Earl, between and the 15th of April next, a feu-charter, signed and sealed by the Abbot in favour of the Earl, of various lands therein mentioned, with a procuratory of resignation for new infeftment thereof in favour of the Earl, or whatsoever person he shall nominate; as also, to grant an obligation in favour of the Earl for such sums of money as may be necessary to apprise the lands in case the Abbot refuse to accept the resignation thereof; but it is declared that it shall not be lawful for the Earl to apprise any more of James Steuart's lands than the lands of Crossraguel feued to him, as said is, nor yet his moveable goods. All which deeds are accordingly now in Lord Ailsa's charter-chest.

There appears also to have been a violent feud between Lord Cassillis and his vassals and the Gordons of Lochinvar regarding the lands of the Abbacy of Glenluce, which had been seised possession of by the Gordons whilst Lord Cassillis had been called in by the Abbot to his assistance.

* Contract dated 30th September 1566. The lady's fortune was 10,000 merks Scots; her jointure, 1000 merks.

† In a curious MS. in the British Museum, containing an account of the Scotch nobility in the reign of James VI., this is stated: "The Erle of Cassilis, called Kanethy, being with his friends of the same surname upon the west seas,

JOHN, FIFTH EARL OF CASSILLIS, eldest son and heir. He succeeded during his minority, and was placed under his uncle, Sir Thomas Kennedy of Culzean, as tutor. The Earl was served heir to his father 30th August 1588.* He was high in the countie of Carrik, a stewardrie and parcel of the shiredome of Ayre. There is of the same name, in that countie, and descended of his house, sundrie lordis and gentlemen, whereof the principall is the Lord of Barganye and Blairquhoy, of little less living than the Erle himself. His chief houses be Cassells and Dunnyre, 4 miles from the bridge of Doone. The people are mingled in speeches of Irish and English, not far distant from Carrickfergus in Ireland. This last Erle was sister (son) to the Lord Aberganie aforesaid.'

In other MSS. the chief seats of the Family at this time are said to be "Dunure in Carrik, Miribole in Carrick, Cullean, Cassillis."

In a MS. book of blazonry and depiction in their proper colours of the arms of the nobility during the reign of Queen Mary, in the Advocates' Library, those of the Earl of Cassillis are represented as they are now. The motto, however, is "avise a fin," instead of "avise la fin," which may be something different.

* On the 28th of February 1578, a commission was granted to Mr John Skene and others, advocates, on the narrative that John, Earl of Cassillis, Thomas Kennedy of Culzean, his uncle and tutor, and John Kennedy, brother-natural of umquhill Gilbert, Earl of Cassillis, had humbly represented to the Lords of Council that they had intended divers actions and causes against John Gordon of Lochinvar, and sundry other persons, inhabitants of the county of Wigtown, stewartry of Kirkcudbright, and earldom of Carrick, within which county, stewartry, and earldom the Earl's lands and heritages lie; and that by reason of the feud between the Earl's House and friends on the one part, and the inhabitants of the said county, stewartry, and earldom, chiefly of the name of Gordon and Crawford, on the other part, who had lately been guilty of the slaughter of Patrick MacDouall of Logan, the friend and dependent of the Earl, it became necessary to grant commission to the said Mr John Skene and others, constituting them sheriffs of Wigtown, stewards of Kirkcudbright, and bailies of Carrick, with power to them to fence and hold courts within the Council-house of Edinburgh, and to proceed and decide in all actions intended and depending at the instance of the Earl, Thomas Kennedy of Culzean, and John Kennedy, against the said John Gordon and other inhabitants of the county of Wigtown, stewartry of Kirkcudbright, and bailiary of Carrick. And in 1580, when Lord Cassillis was served heir to his father to his estates in Kirkcudbright, viz. the £10 land of Brachs, called the Forest of Buchan, and fishings thereof, and also treasurer of Scotland for a few months in 1599, but was glad to be relieved from the office on payment of 40,000 merks. It was during this Earl's life that most of the events occurred narrated in the History of the Kennedys, and which occasioned the death of young Gilbert Kennedy of Bargany at Brockloch, near Lady Course, Maybole, on 11th December 1601, and of Sir Thomas Kennedy of Culzean, by the Mures of Auchendrain, and Bargany's brother, Thomas Kennedy of Drummurichie.* He married Jean, daughter of James, fourth Lord Fleming, widow of John, Lord Maitland of Thirlestane, a lady a great deal older than himself, and against the wish of all his friends. They had the lands called the Free Forest of Buchan, a dispensation was granted for holding the service in Edinburgh, because "it was hazardous that such should proceed before the said steward and his deputies in the burgh of Kirkcudbright, by reason of the feud subsisting between the Earl, his tutor, and their friends, on the one part, and Sir John Gordon of Lochinvar, Knight, on the other part—the latter, with his friends and partakers, having lately committed divers slaughters, mutilations, and other injuries upon the Earl's friends and dependents, as was clearly known to the Lords of Session."

* It seems to have been in consequence of his uncle's death, and the desire of vengeance upon Auchindrain, that the Earl was led to write the following extraordinary letter to his brother Hugh, the Master of Cassillis, to induce him to take the Laird of Auchindrain's life :—

"We, Johne, Earle of Cassillis, Lord Kennedy, &c., bindis and obliissis ws, that howsoevne our broder, Hew Kennedy of Brounstoun, with his complices, taikis the Laird of Auchindraneis lyf, that we shall mak guid and thankfull payment to him and thame of the soume of tuelff hundreth merkis zeirlye, together with corne to sex horsis, ay and quhill (until) we ressaue (receive) thame in household with our self: beginning the first payment immediatlie after thair committing of the said deid. Attour howsoevne we ressaue them in household, we sall pay to the twa serving gentillmen the feis yeirlye as our awin houshold servandis. And heirto we obliiss ws vpon our honour. Subscryvit with our hand at Maybole the ferd day of September 1602."

"JOHNE, ERLE OF CASSILLIS."

Lord Cassillis' father and Sir Thomas Kennedy were cousins-german of Bargany's father, and the latter had been one of the Earl's curators, whilst Auchindrain's eldest son was married to Sir Thomas Kennedy's daughter.

JOHN, SIXTH EARL OF CASSILLIS, eldest son of Gilbert, Master of Cassillis, the youngest son of Gilbert, fourth Earl, who married Margaret, daughter of Uchtred M'Dowall of Garthland. She afterwards married James, Lord Ochiltree. Lord Cassillis was a person of great virtue, and zealously attached to the Presbyterian form of worship. He took an early and prominent part in resistance to the designs of Charles I. in 1638. He was one of the three ruling elders sent to the Westminster Assembly of Divines in 1643. He was served heir to his uncle, John, fifth Earl, on 25th July 1616. He was appointed Lord Justice-General on the 29th June, and admitted an extraordinary Lord of Session 3d July 1649.† In that year he was sent

* In a manuscript in the British Museum, containing an account of the Scottish nobility about 1592, ap Cottonian MSS., it is said,‡ “ Earle Cassillis, Kennedy married ye Chancellour Maitland’s widow, of gude years, not like to bear children, daughter and heire to the Lord Flemming. She had compounded for the living with the Lord Flemming.”

† He is called by Crauford, in his Officers of State, “the grave and solemn Earl.” Being naturally just and upright, he could ill brook to act harshly, much less unjustly, in his legal capacity, even to a decided political opponent during a turbulent and agitated period. As preses of the Court in 1646 he was obliged to sign the sentence of execution of Sir Robert Spottiswood, president of the Court of Session. His repugnance to the act is finely commemorated in the following classical though rather elaborate lines of the great lawyer, Sir John Nisbet of Dirleton, who had been counsel for Sir Robert.

Tempore necquicquam Judex CASSILLISUS iniquo
Æquior, ei anceps officiumque fuit.

And in another MS., (ibid.) in 1602, it is said,—“ Earle Cassillis Kennedy married ye Chancellour Maitland’s widow of good yeares, not like to bear children, daughter and heire to the Lord Flemming. She hath compounded for ye living with the Lord Flemming.”

to wait upon Charles II. in Holland with the terms upon which the Estates were willing to acknowledge his cause. These Charles would not agree to, and the Earl returned. He voted against sending commissioners to treat with the King at Breda; but this having been carried, he was himself appointed one of them, and accordingly met the King at Breda. At the Restoration the Earl was re-appointed an extraordinary Lord of Session, but did not retain the situation long, having been superseded in July 1662, on account of his refusal to take the oaths of allegiance and supremacy, without an explanation as to the King's ecclesiastical interests. He married, first, Jean, daughter of Thomas, first Earl of Haddington,* and had issue,—

1. James, Lord Kennedy, who died during his father's life unmarried.
2. Margaret, who married Gilbert Burnett, then professor of divinity in the university of Glasgow, afterwards bishop of Salisbury.
3. Catharine, who married William, Lord Cochrane, eldest son of William, first Earl of Dundonald, and had issue.
4. Helen, died unmarried.†

His Lordship married, secondly, Margaret, only daughter of William, ^{ninth} ~~tenth~~ Earl of Errol, and widow of Henry, Lord Ker, eldest son of Robert, first Earl of Roxburgh,‡ and by her had issue,—

1. John, seventh Earl of Cassillis.
2. Mary.

JOHN, SEVENTH EARL OF CASSILLIS, eldest surviving son and heir, was served heir to his father 22d September 1668. He was of the same religious principles as his father; was the only member of Parliament in 1670 who voted against the act for punishing conventicles. He was, in consequence, persecuted by the Government, by having a large body of Highlanders quartered on his estates. He joined in the Revolution, was a privy councillor of King William, and one of the Lords of the Treasury. He married, first, Susan, youngest daughter of James, first Duke of Hamilton, and by her had issue,—

1. John, Lord Kennedy, died during his father's life, having married Elizabeth, daughter of Charles Hutcheson, Esq. of Owthorpe, in Nottinghamshire,* and had issue,—

John, eighth Earl of Cassillis.

Lord Kennedy died in 1700, and his widow afterwards married John, Earl of Selkirk and Ruglen.

2. Anne, married, in 1694, John, Earl of Selkirk and Ruglen,† and had issue.

Lord Cassillis married, secondly, Elizabeth Foix, by whom he had issue,—

1. James, who died without issue.
2. Elizabeth.

His Lordship died 23d July 1701,‡ and was succeeded by served heir to his father, Lord Kennedy, 22d February 1704. He was born about 1700; was governor of Dumbarton Castle. On the abolition of heritable jurisdictions, he was allowed £1800 for the bailiary of Carrick. He executed a strict entail of his estates on 29th March 1759 in favour of himself and the heirs-male of his body; whom failing, the heirs-female of his body, the eldest always succeeding without division, and the heirs whatever of their bodies, also without division; whom failing, Sir Thomas Kennedy of Culzean, Baronet, and the heirs-male of his body; whom failing, to Mr David Kennedy, advocate, brother-german of the said Sir Thomas Kennedy, and the heirs-male of his body; whom failing, to any person or persons whom he should at any time thereafter nominate or appoint to succeed to his said estates, and failing such nomination, to his nearest lawful heirs-male whatsoever; whom failing, his nearest lawful heirs whatsoever. He married his cousin, Susan,* youngest daughter of John, Earl of Selkirk and Ruglen, by Lady Anne Kennedy, daughter of John, seventh Earl of Cassillis, but by her had no issue. His Lordship died in London 7th March 1759, and was buried in Saint James' Church; but in June 1760 his body was removed to the collegiate church of Maybole. Lady Cassillis died 8th February 1763, and was buried in the abbey of Holyrood House.

On the Earl's death the estates went, under the deed of entail, to the heir-male, Sir Thomas Kennedy of Culzean, Bart., descended from Sir Thomas Kennedy, third son of Gilbert, third Earl, and a competition arose for the Peerage between him and William, Earl of March and Ruglen, afterwards Duke of Queensberry, as grandson and heir of Lady Anne, Countess of Selkirk and Ruglen, daughter of John, seventh Earl. After a lengthened litigation, it was finally resolved and adjudged by the House of Lords on 27th January 1762, "That the petitioner, Sir Thomas Kennedy, hath a right and title to the honour and dignity of Earl of Cassillis, as heir-male of the body of David, the first Earl of Cassillis, and that he hath also a right and title to the honour and dignity of Lord Kennedy, as heir-male of the body of Gilbert, the first Lord Kennedy." *

THOMAS, NINTH EARL OF CASSILLIS, who thus succeeded, was descended from Gilbert, third Earl, whose third son was

Sir Thomas Kennedy of Culzean. He was styled Master P. 37. of Cassillis (his immediate elder brother having died in infancy) at the battle of Langside, where he was taken prisoner. He was knighted at the coronation of James VI. He got a charter of the lands of Culzean from his brother Gilbert, the fourth Earl, in which he was infeft 14th September 1569. He married Elizabeth, daughter of David M'Gill of Cranston Riddell,

* The note which follows, of a resolution of the House of Lords in this case, is in the handwriting of the Earl of Hardwicke, 22d January 1762:—"After time taken for consideration on debate, but without any division, the Lords resolved that Sir Thomas Kennedy, as heir-male, was entitled to the titles and honours of Lord Kennedy and Earl of Cassillis, and so reported to the King.

"The grounds were two:—

"1st, That no particular limitation or constitution of the fief appearing, it ought to be presumed to be a male fief, that being the most usual and customary limitation in those ancient times, especially in the case of an earldom which was originally an office.

"2d, That the resignation and new charters of 1642 and 1671 did not comprise or extend to the dignities and honours, but only the estate, (i.e.) the earldom erected and the lands. Lord Marchmont differed. A letter was addressed on this occasion to Lord Hardwicke by Lord Mansfield, stating his own views on this matter, which coincided with those of the ex-chancellor, and referring to cases and precedents bearing on the points before him."—Harris' Life of the Earl of Hardwicke, vol. iii., pp. 277-8.

The estate of Blairquhan was appraised from James Kennedy in 1623 by John Gilmour, W.S., who disposed it to William M'Adam of Waterhead, and Humphry Dowie, who afterwards disposed it to Adam Whitefoord in Trochrigg, and he to John Whitefoord, who got John Kennedy, a descendant of the old Family of Blairquhan, to make up a title and convey the estate to him. The estate was subsequently sold by John Whitefoord's descendants to the curators of Sir David Hunter Blair, Baronet.

§ She is mentioned in a contract, dated 30th July 1622, between James Kennedy of Culzean, with consent of Anne Steuart, his wife, and John Fergusson of Kilkerran, and Helen Kennedy, his wife, and Alexander Kennedy of Craigoch.

In the History of the Kennedys, Sir Thomas Kennedy's sons are said to have been—James, Alexander, John, and David, and his daughters—Margaret, married the young Sheriff of Galloway; Helen, married the young Laird of Auchindrain; and Susanna, who was afterwards Lady Larg.

Kennedy of Drummurchie, at the instigation of the Mures of Auchindrain. The Mures were tried before the High Court of Justiciary, and sentenced to be beheaded, and their estates forfeited. Sir Thomas was succeeded by his second surviving son, James, who sold the estate to his brother,

Sir Alexander Kennedy of Craigoch, and ultimately heir. He acquired the estate of Culzean in 1622. He also acquired the barony of Greenan, lands of Balterson, Mochrumhill, and Glenluie in 1642 from John Steuart, Earl of Carrick. He married Agnes, daughter of Thomas Kennedy of Ardmillan,* and had issue,—

1. John, of whom below.
2. Alexander, called, first, of Craigoch, afterwards of Kilhenzie, from whom descended Archibald, eleventh Earl of Cassillis.

By the King.

To our Lord High Chamberlain, the Stewards of our Household, and Comptroller of our Accompts,—be it known to you, that wishing to shew our gratitude to our trusty and well-beloved Gilbert, Earl of Cassillis, for the important and commendable service done to us by the late Earl of Cassillis, his father, during his lifetime, both in our wars and on many other occasions,—hence it is that, from these considerations, and from our hope that he will endeavour to follow his father's steps, and after his example distinguish himself in our service, we have this day, by these our letters-patent, appointed, and do appoint him to the rank of Gentleman in ordinary of our Chamber, in the room and place of the said late Earl of Cassillis, his father, with all the honours, prerogatives, authorities, precedences, liberties, rights, salaries, profits, revenues, and emoluments appertaining to the said office, and that during our pleasure, it being our will and command, that when the said Gilbert, Earl of Cassillis, has taken the oaths usually required in such cases, you insert, or cause be inserted, in the Registry of our Chamber of Accompts, these our letters-patent, and that you permit and allow him to enter into full possession and enjoyment of all the honours, prerogatives, authorities, precedences, liberties, privileges, rights, salaries, profits, revenues, and emoluments aforesaid, and shew him all the respect to which such rank entitles him—besides, we command the treasurer of the salaries and dues of the officers of our Household to pay to the said Earl, annually, from this time forward, the salaries and dues belonging to the said office, according to the usual practice in such cases, for such is our will and pleasure. Given under our Privy Seal at Paris, this tenth day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand five hundred and fifty-eight.

By the King to Monsieur de Guise, Peer and Lord High Chamberlain.

20. PETITION of JOHN, SEVENTH EARL OF CASSILLIS, to KING CHARLES II.

As to sums advanced by his father for maintenance of the army raised in Ireland ; with reference on the back of the Petition. 26th February 1683.

TO THE KINGS MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTIE

THE HUMBLE PETITION OF JOHN EARLE OF CASSILLIS

In all Humility Sheweth,

That albeit the Supplicants Father was among the last that was drawne into the disloyall courses of the late Troubles Yet hee was amongst many others prevailed with to subscribe publick Bonds for vast sumes far exceeding the value of his Estate for payment of many of which publick Debts Hee was distressed by sentences during the English Usurpation (at which time his Estate also was Sequesterd for his constant adherence to your Majesties Interest) And hee was necessitated to borrow great summes on his private Credit for that end, Likeas hee did advance considerable summes for the maintanance of the Army raised by your Royall Fathers command in Ireland by which meanes his Estate did descend to the Supplicant with a great Burthen of private Debts, besides such of these publick Debts as were not satisfied or transacted by him which have been suspended by seaverall Acts of Parliament ever since Your Majesties Happy Restoration but are now by the 26th Act of this Your Majesties Current Parliament acquitted & discharged with this Reservation that no person should have the Benefitt of that Act who should not take the Test appointed by the 6th Act of that Parliament to be taken by all persons in publick Trust ;

And Your Sacred Majesties Supplicant being uncleare to take the Test; his Estate which is over burtthened with private debts undertaken allready for payment of such of these Publick Debts as his Father was forced to satisfie in the English time, will now bee absolutely ruin'd & his Family quite extinguished by the Remainder of these public debts not yet transacted Except Your Majesties Royall Grace & Bounty prevent the same, And seeing the Supplicants Father though hee had the Misfortune to be at last seduced to engage in these Troubles Yet Your Sacred Majestie was graciously pleased to looke on him allwaies while hee lived as a dutiful Subject and faithfull to Your Interest, and to honor him so far as to command his services when occation offered and particularly to attend your Sacred Person Two seaverall times at Breda, where hee endeavoured to the utmost of his poure to begitt and Entertaine a good understanding betwixt Your Majestie and your Subjects; At that time and afterwards your Majestie was pleased to Employ him as Justice Generall for your Kingdome of Scotland; Which office hee did faithfully Exercise without any Fee or Pencion. And notwithstanding the Extravagancies of a Factious Partie here, & the Oppression of the English Usurpers who had sequesterd his Estate Hee continued in and never swerved from the duty & Allegiance hee owed your Majestie even unto his death And did singularly manifest to all the Countrey where hee lived his detestation & Abhorrence of all compliance with the English Usurpers. Likewise Your Sacred Majesties Supplicant ever since hee was capable hath been ready & willing upon all occations to serve Your Majestie and is still ready to sacrifice his Life & Fortune in Your Majesties Service; And seeing the Representatives of the late Duke of Rothes were upon worthy considerations allowed by the said Act the benefitt thereof without necessity of their Takeing the Test.

MAY IT THEREFORE please Your Sacred Majestie graciously to recommend your Supplicant to his Royall Highness Your Majesties High Commissioner and your Estates of Parliament that at the next Session hee may be likewise excepted from that Proviission in the Act, and the Benefitt thereof may be Extended to him though hee be not cleare to take the Test appointed for Persons in publick Trust, And least the Supplicant be distressed for these debts, in the meanetime in respect the Acts suspending the same are neither expressly reserved nor rescinded, May it therefore please Your Majestie to recommend the Supplicants condicion to the Lords of Session that Process bee not sustained against him for these Debts untill the next Session of Parliament

And your Petitioner (as in duty bound) shall ever pray, &c.

CASSILLIS.

Whitehall 29th Feb^r 168³₄

His Majesty is graciously pleased to refer this Petition to the Right Honorable the Lords of the Secrett Committee of his most Honorable Privy Councell of Scotland, who are by his Majesty required to consider the Petitioners request, and with all convenient diligence to report their Opinion thereof to his Majesty who thereupon will signify his further pleasure in this matter.

21. JAMES, EARL OF PERTH, to SIR ARCHIBALD KENNEDY.

Thanking him for a present of Solan geese. 19th August 1693.

SIR

I thank you heartily for the rarity you sent vs. Solen geese are Strangers in our part of the world & yours have come very much fresher than could have been expected at so vast a distance.

I confess it is hard to live in a Countrie such as yours is & therefor the Caution cannot be too great you use in your conversations. You may be sure that I am far from being so nice in point of Jealousie as to misconstrue a far greater appearance of unkindness than any thing you mention in your oblidging letter.

I came hither thinking to stay only two nights but my Wife relapst into the Jaundice which she had recovered of not two months before which has kept us here these 5 Weeks. She is scarce past danger as yet, both she & I Give our service to you, and to all your family & I am particularly

HONORED SIR

As nothing shall be more my study then to merit the continuation of that friendship my Ancestoures were honored with from their friends in Scotland The earlie testimonie you give me of yours Sir must certainly make great impressions of honor and gratitude in me for you. It was great misfortune to me that the fewnesse of my yeares made me incapable of the honor of your acquaintance in the litle stay you made in this country tho were I soe fortunat as to see you I could not forgett a person of your merit and quality, (as upon the matter I may say) you were the first to putt armes into my hands. I shall allways make it my business next those I owe all to, to make use of them to your Service and do asure you I am extreamly proud of your present. I wish Sir I were so fortunate as to have a great dogg I am sure that or any thing else in my power should be at your Service: My father or I have none but Ile be sure to make inquirie and if any be in the Kingdome I do not doubt to procure it for you and begg youle please to own me forthwith I very much am

July 8 Utright.

SIR

Tho I have neather seen you, nor heard from you thes many years yet I assure you I retaine stil both the Kindnes and Esteime I had of you, and was very glad to find att my arrival to this Countray on of your sons who resembls you so much I thought it had been you. Att first acquaintance I loved him on your account and now very much on his own, he is now goeing to quitt us, as you have ordred him, which I could not lett him do without giving you my opinion what I think would be best for him to do afterwards, if your affairs can easily admit it, to be yet att a little more expence about him. I assure you he has been very dilligent and frugal beyond many of his countraymen—but tho' he has studdied very weal it will need another year in my opinion to perfite him in what you intend him for and since on yeare more eather in France, or in this place will do it, it wer a pity he had it not. I'm confident that time will make him fitt to do for himself so he will be the les burdensom to you. I do not use to medle in other peopls affairs for evry body knows best ther own, but I interest my self in any thing belongs you so much I could not but give you my opinion in a thing I see would be so much to his advantage and conequently to yours. If I be here as its to like I shal I will be very glad of his company and any litl servise I can render him you may be confident of it. Gladly would I see you in Scotland but I have litle hops of that since I have been refused so often. Wherever I am,
